Our final topic of last term tested your knowledge of current affairs by doing an end-of-year quiz! Here's how different students felt about their scores and what they showed...

Have you learnt more about the world this year?

"I think I have stayed more away from the news this year as it has been so sad."

"This year made me realise how there are so many things going on, and that's what made me check out the news more often than before."

This week's VoteTopic:

Following several requests from our schools and to mark Organ Donation Week, this week we will be discussing the new "opt-out" system that came into place in England earlier this year and whether this is the best way to encourage organ donation.

Is the opt-out system the best way to encourage organ donation?

Discuss at home:

- Whether you know of anyone who has chosen to donate their organs and why.
- What you think your decision might be once you are over 18.
- Which other approaches could work well in encouraging more people to donate.

Student research points:

- Find out more about how the system has been working in Wales since 2015.
- Explore where else in the world similar systems exist and when they began.
- Investigate one of the early examples of organ transplant and how this has evolved since.

For advice on where to go if you or someone you know needs support or would like someone to talk to, please see the next slide.
